SYLVANUS FERRIS CLARK

SOUTH PORTLAND - Syl-

vanus Ferris Clark, 85, of South Portland, died Saturday, June 14, 2003, at the Maine Veterans' Home in Scarborough. He was born in Presque Isle, son of Leland H. and Nellie (Ferris) Clark.

Ferris, as he preferred to be called, attended Presque Isle High School, where he played five sports, excelling in basketball. He played in 34 consecutive league wins and held the scoring record for 51 years in Aroostook County. He was an All-Aroostook center and was one of only three players selected to All-Aroostook for three years. While at Aroostook State Teachers College Presque Isle, he played in two state championship games and one New England championship game as center. At the New England championship he made the final basket to win. Ferris was called in the first draft during World War II and went to Camp Wheeler as a member of the infantry. He was assigned to the 118th Engineers Camp in Blanding, Fla., and later transferred to 648th, Engineer Topographical Battalion. While in the 43rd division he was stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss., and then shipped overseas on the first boatload of American soldiers sent to Australia. While stationed in Australia, he met and married his wife, Mabel Connors, of Melbourne. His war service of five years ended in Manila, Philippines. Ferris worked for the General Foods Corporation for 32 years as salesman and supervisor. He was a member of Trinity Lodge 130 (Masons) in Presque Isle for more than 55 years. An avid outdoor sportsman, Ferris was well known in the Rangeley area as an outstanding fisherman and hunter. He spent the last 40 summers at his camp in Hunter's Cove. He was past vice president of Rangeley Region Guides' & Sportsmen's Association.

CAPE ELIZABETH - William A. Clark III, 77, of Cape Elizabeth, died May 4, 2005 at a Portland Nursing Facility.

William Augustus Clark III 'Bill', the son of William and Marion "Sawyer" Clark, was born in South Portland, Maine on June 2, 1927. Stories of his childhood tell of he and his father rowing out to Halfway Rock, an island off the coast of Portland, on which William's father was the lighthouse keeper.

It was on that island that he learned his love of the sea, and of the game of cribbage. At age 14, with a make shift helmet of a pail and a hose (which his friend held up to provide air), he embarked on his maiden dive to Clark Island, off Westbrook Street. It was not until half a century later that he retired from diving, in 1976.

On June 19, 1946, he married Margaret Mary (Lombardi) Clark, with whom he shared five children, Katherine, Dorothy, Carol, William, and Christopher. He and his wife were married for 31 years, until her death in 1977.

During his high school years, he attended New York Military academy, and on June 5, 1944, at the age of 17, Bill joined the Navy. He subsequently attended Salvage Diving School, and worked as a deep-sea diver off the local waters of Portland for various companies, including: the Harris Company, DiMillo's, and Mobil Oil, until 1948.

In 1954, he founded General Marine Construction, which he owned and operated until 1976. During those years, he dived on wrecks, pipelines, water mains, and blasting sites. He did his diving through ice, during storms - in all extremes - anything that Casco Bay could throw at him. He loved his work, with the exception of being the sole person in the area called to go to the deepest depths of the sea to retrieve people's loved ones. "He had the bends more times than he would ever admit." Even after his retirement, he was an inspector on the waterfront and worked for Cianbro Construction and the Army Corp of Engineers.

Bill was also a member of the 19th Mason #180. On May 17, 2002, Bill was honored for a Propeller Club Member of the Year Award in recognition of his extraordinary service to the Club and his many years of dedicated and committed work that went beyond the call of duty. Senator Olympia Snowe personally wrote a letter commending him for his contributions to maritime activities, both professionally and personally. "Clarkie," as he was known to his friends, will be remembered for his smile and his handshake that was like a vice. He is described as a man with "strength of conviction-and a quiet, unassuming, confident demeanor."

Until his death, Bill attended Clark Memorial United Methodist Church, where he was a dedicated parishioner.

William has joined his loving wife, Margaret, and son, Christopher, who predeceased him.

He is survived by his long time companion, June, and his sister, Marion Cram; his children, Katherine Clark, Dorothy Buck, Carol McAllister, and William Clark; 11 grandchildren: Bruce, Leeann, Tammy, Duncan, Joshua, Kalahn, Heath, Amber, Rachel, Christopher, and Jessica; two great-grandchildren, Nicholas and Angela, and many family and friends.

Visiting hours will be 6-8 p.m. Friday, May 6, at the Hobbs Funeral Home, 230 Cottage Road, South Portland, where a funeral service will take place 9:30 a.m. Saturday, May 7. Interment will follow at Brooklawn Memorial Park Portland

Rev. Richard D. Cleaves, 81, of Westport, died Sunday, October 6 at Cove's Edge in Damariscotta, 12 days after being diagnosed with cancer.

Born in Newburyport, Mass. on February 27, 1920, he was the youngest son of The Rev. Arthur W. and Mary (Nudd) Cleaves. The family relocated soon afterward when his father was called to the First Baptist Church of Providence, R.I., and Rev. Cleaves grew up in that city, attending grammar and secondary school at Moses Brown Academy.

Upon graduating from Harvard College in 1941, he entered Andover Newton Theological Seminary, where he received a Bachelor of Divinity degree in 1944. That year he was ordained, and commissioned a chaplain in the U.S. Navy. Two years previous he had married Florence Larson of New Bedford, Mass.

He served at sea in the Pacific Theater in World War II, then with Marine aviation units on the Korean peninsula during the Korean War, and again at sea in the postwar years in the Mediterranean with the Sixth Fleet. His domestic tours of duty took him and his family to naval bases around the country, as well as three separate assignments in Washington, D.C.

After retiring from the Navy in 1965, he became a chaplain and counselor at Augusta Mental Health Institute. He also resumed studies at Andover Newton, receiving a Master's of Psychology in Sacred Theology in 1968 and a D.Min. in 1973. With deep roots in Maine, the family settled first in Winthrop, but by the time he retired from AMHI in 1984, he and Mrs. Cleaves, an elementary school teacher and administrator, also retired, were living in the home they'd built at Kehail Point on Westport Island.

With his wife, Rev. Cleaves was active in community volunteer work throughout Lincoln County, including the Meals on Wheels program, the Lincoln County Cultural and Historical Association, and Lincoln County Hospice, which he co-founded. He was a member of the Wawenock and Kennebec River chapters of the United States Power Squadron, and served variously as chaplain, treasurer, and commander of District 19 of the Squadron. In addition, he was a member of the Lincoln and What Cheer (East Providence, R.I.) Lodges of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, and of the local American Legion Post 178.

Rev. Cleaves regularly preached as a substitute in the pulpits of friends and colleagues in the region, and officiated at many weddings, a continuing honor and delight for him.

Survivors include his wife of 59 years; three daughters, Vickery Cleaves of Alna, Kathryn Burke of Washington, D.C., and Anne Cleaves of Cambridge, Mass.; four grandsons, Eli Lazarus of Alna, Benjamin and Daniel Burke of Washington, D.C., and Samuel Harp of Hong Kong; and a great-granddaughter, Anya You Harp.
