Born 9-6-1895

Togus, Dec. 3. — Henry Edwin Farnham of Portland, former city editor of the Portland Evening Express and political writer for the Gannett Publishing Co., died at the Veterans' Facility here today after a long illness. He was 53.

Farnham, widely known by his by-line, Harry Farnham, started his outstanding newspaper career in 1920 at the Kennebec Journal, one of the five Gannett newspapers.

He climbed rapidly to top positions in the news department, starting as an advertising salesman at the Kennebec Journal and later transferring to its news department.

He joined the Associated Press Bureau in Pittsburgh in 1927, returning to Maine in 1928 to join the AP's Portland Bureau. He became state editor of the bureau, a post he resigned in 1940 to join the staffs of the Evening Express, Press Herald and Sunday Telegram.

Coverage of politics and other major assignments, including the famed Carroll murder case at South Paris, made him widely known among newspaper readers and newspapermen.

He became city editor of the Evening Express in 1942, a position he held until April, 1946, when he resumed political writing. Ill health subsequently forced him to discontinue newspaper work.

His weekly column, Maine Politics, was widely read. He held the high confidence of politicians and state officials with whom he worked tirelessly at legislative sessions.

Farnham, a native of Boston, had a diversified training before becoming a newspaperman. He traveled extensively for John B. Rogers, operator of a nationally known theatrical agency which used local talent to produce amateur shows in small towns.

He attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Maine after receiving his early schooling in Boston. His studies to become a concert pianist were ended by his enlistment in World War I. He served overseas as a lieutenant for nearly two years. He was gassed.

During his early newspaper days, he played the piano in his dance orchestra in Augusta.

Besides being an outstanding musician, he was a gifted wood carver, and pursued it as a hobby. He also was a cabinet maker.

He was a reserve officer in the Maine National Guard and mem-

Roderick Ewen Farnham

retired from Great Northern, ex-legislator

HAMPDEN - Roderick Ewen Farnham, 85, a former legislator who introduced the state law requiring hunters to wear blaze orange, died Saturday at a Bangor hospital following a long illness.

A longtime Hampden resident who formerly lived in Millinocket, he was the husband of Margaret Davis Sprague Farnham, a retired schoolteacher, for 57 years.

PASSAGES

Each week the Sunday

Telegram selects one obituary and seeks to learn more about the life of a person who has lived and worked in Maine. We look for a person who has made a mark on the community or the person's family and circle of friends in small but lasting ways.

Patricia Russell, one of Farnham's five children, said her father was an avid outdoorsman who became concerned about the high number of hunters who were killed when mistaken for game.

During Mr. Farnham's three terms in the state House of Representatives, from 1968 through 1976, he advocated that all hunters wear blaze orange clothing.

Upon passage of the bill, Russell said, "The number of fatalities went down immediately afterward."

Mr. Farnham was born in Brownville Junction, a son of Willard and Marion Morrison Farnham. As a youngster growing up in Brownville Junction, he worked for the Canadian Pacific Railroad. As a young man, he also worked at the Daley Pond camps in what is now Baxter State Park and guided sportsmen up Mount Katahdin. In 1931, he graduated from Colby College in Waterville, where he majored in history and was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He served on Colby's Board of Trustees from 1959 to 1965, was a trustee emeritus and class agent, and chairman of the Colby Alumni Council for two years.

"Colby was quite important to him and he always loved returning to the campus," his wife, Margaret, also a Colby graduate, recalled.

Mr. Farnham retired in 1972 from Great Northern Paper Co., where he was the personnel director in the company's Woodlands Department, and a lobbyist. In 1977, he became a lobbyist for Bangor Hydro-Electric Co.

He belonged to the Millinocket, Noblesevic Masonic Lodge for over 50 years, was a Shriner with the Ansh Temple in Bangor, and member of the Hampden Kovans Club.

He also served on the Hampden School Board, Water Commission and Conservation Committee. He was a founding member of the Hampden Library Board, a director of the Hampden Historical Society, treasurer of the Maine Old Cemetery Association and president of Associated Industries of Maine Personnel Association. He was also appointed to the State Personnel Board by former Gov. James Longley.

He was "extremely proud" of his Scottish heritage, and made numerous trips to the Outer Hebrides, from where his grandparents emigrated to Canada. He was a member of the St. Andrews Society of Maine and the Clan Morrison Society.

He also enjoyed his summer cottage on Monson Pond, and his hunting camp and maple sugar operations in Elliptisville.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Alden Sprague of Huntington, N.Y., R. Ewen Farnham Jr. of Hampden; three daughters, Patricia Russell of Millinocket, M. Jane Rabeni of Columbia, Mo., and Barbara Briggs of Hampden; two brothers, Raymond of Bath and Carleton of Waterville; 11 grandchildren and a great-grandson.

A funeral service will be held 11 a.m. Tuesday at All Souls Congregational Church in Bangor. Arrangements are by the Hampden Funeral Home.
