Asa F. Jacobs

Asa F. Jacobs, 83, the first man employed by the Bell Telephone Company in Maine and for many years division foreman of construction for the company, later known as the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, in Portland, died Sunday in a Stoneham, Mass., nursing home, according to word received here today. He died following a long illness.

Mr. Jacobs was first employed by Western Union, then affiliated with Bell Telephone, and when telephones were set up in Portland, the first place in Maine, he was hired to maintain and service the huge "wet" batteries, as they were then called, which furnished current for the telephones.

As the service expanded, Mr. Jacobs assumed more responsible positions, his last position being that of division foreman in charge of construction, a position which he held until his retirement, after 47 years service, in 1926.

Mr. Jacobs was a member of Portland Lodge of Masons, of St. Albans Commandery, and of Kora Temple, Shriners, of Lewiston.

He is survived by a son, Asa L. Jacobs of Melrose, Mass., with whom he had made his home prior to his illness; four grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be at 11 Mellen Street at 2 p. m., Wednesday. Interment will be at Evergreen Cemetery.
