Bath, Jan. 14—Ernest F. Kelley, 76.

former Bath postmaster and prominent in Democratic circles for many years, died this afternoon. He had been in ill health the last two years.

Mr. Kelley was born in Bath, a son of Capt. Francis and Jane Gilmore Kelley, was graduated in 1879 from the old Bath High School and attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The first steam windlass and the first marine engine built by the old Bath Iron Works, in 1887, was designed by Mr. Kelley. He was in the employ of Gen. Thomas W. Hyde at the iron works, and later the Hyde Windlass Company. He had done much special work for the Torrey Roller Bushing Works and the old Watson-Frye machine shop. He patented many marine engineering devices.

A master draftsman, his drawings were published in the London Engineering Journal among other marine publications. He prepared the Bath Iron Works exhibit at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893.

His father was one of Bath's most widely known old school shipmasters, who engaged for years in trade with the West Indies and European ports. A brother, the late Capt. John R. Kelley, likewise a noted master, was senior member of the noted shipbuilding firm of Kelley & Spear. A nephew, Capt. Redford Kelley, and a brother-in-law, Capt. Hiram G. Percy, were deep water windjammer skippers and two uncles, John and James Kelley, built vessels at Phippsburg, where Mr. Kelley's father was born.

Mr. Kelley was three times a member of the city council, with Mayors James W. Wakefield, Charles E. Patten and John O. Shaw, and in 1911, during the administration of Mayor Frak A. Small, he was city clerk. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Chicago in 1892 and in 1894 was appointed postmaster by President Cleveland.

In 1888 he conducted classes in drafting at the Central Church vestry evening school, one of his students being the late Henry A. Magoun, who became a vice president of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation. In later years he conducted classes at the Y. M. C. A. He was largely instrumental in the establishment of the Evening School of Industry and served for a time as its principal. He was also a member of the board of education. Kelley Field, the local center for outdoor sports, in which he was much interested, was named for him.

In 1933, at Fort Williams, Mr. Kelley was elected secretary of the Three-Quarter Century Club. Last year he was elected vice president of the club, but declined because of ill health. He was a member of the local Masonic groups and of Acadia Lodge, K. of P.

One son, Frank B. Kelley of Winchester, Mass., survives.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the parish of the Central Congregational Church.

WINDHAM — Frederick E. Kelley, 85, a well-known local carpenter, contractor and building-trades instructor at Windham High School, died April 19, 2001, at the Maine Veterans' Home in Scarborough. Mr. Kelley lived on Chute Road for more than 60 years.

Born at Boothbay Harbor, a son of Arthur and Abbie Brewer Kelley, he attended Boothbay and Gorham schools, and graduated from Gorham High School in 1934. In 1937, he married Agnes M. Sawyer, who died Jan. 10, 1994. During World War II, he served with the Army Air Corps.

Mr. Kelley, a carpenter and contractor all his life, taught building construction for 24 years at Windham High School.

During the summers, while teaching, he worked on various schools in Windham and helped build the former Gingerbread Elementary School in Windham. He also helped build an addition to the town library, helped with construction of the local Masonic Hall and built a gazebo for the town's 250th anniversary. He built cedar-strip canoes for the fun of it and he handcrafted whirligigs that he sold. He also taught chair caning in the adult education program.

In his spare time he built boats, cabinets, musical instruments and many wood-craft items and was considered an expert in restoring woodwork.

He was a member of the Masons and the Chase Cemetery Association, served for several years in the 1950s as a Windham selectman, served on the town budget and school building committees and was also Windham's first building inspector.

Surviving are four daughters, Kathleen Whirlwind Soldier of Windham, Patricia Kelley of Arlington, Va., Ellen Jordan of South Portland and Barbara Keef of Standish; two sons, Frederick A. of Windham and Russell E. of Naples; 14 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.
