PORTLAND - Capt. John 'Ian' Lough, 81, passed away peacefully in the presence of his family at Maine Medical Center on Sunday, Nov. 9, 2003 after a brief illness.

He was born in Whitehead, County Antrim, Northern Ireland on July 29, 1922, son of John and Charlotte (Williamson) Lough.

In February 1939, at the age of 16, he joined the Coracero of the Donaldson Line as a midshipman apprentice. For the next 38 years he traveled the world on various ships until he retired as a Master Mariner from Shell Canadian Tankers in 1979. During the period 1962 - 1974, he served as Mate and then Master of the Emerillon, which made bi-weekly runs carrying crude oil from Venezuela to the Portland Pipeline located at Pier 2 in South Portland.

They settled in South Portland, where they lived for 22 years and were members of the Thorton Heights Methodist Church. Ian and Sheila also lived in Windham for 14 years and Cape Elizabeth for six years before returning to South Portland to live with their daughter last year. Since 1996, they have wintered in St. Petersburg, Fla. They traveled the world extensively and made many dear friends along their journey.

Ian was a lifelong Freemason, most recently a member of the Hiram Lodge of South Portland. He loved the sea, lakes, ships and boats of any kind. While summering in Maine, he stopped by Bug Light Park in South Portland daily to check out the ships that were in port. His other passions included opera and British TV comedies. He was a shy man yet the friendships he made lasted a lifetime. His integrity, values and sense of right versus wrong were the greatest gifts that he passed along to his children.

He was predeceased by his sister, Patricia Lough Rowlett; a son, Edward; and two SACO - George D. Love, 65, formerly of Saco died Tuesday at a Portland hospital after a long illness.

He was born in Toledo, Ohio, a son of Dr. George Rusk and Helen Deering Love. He spent most of his life in Saco. He attended Thornton Academy, Exeter Academy, Worcester Academy and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Mr. Love was a textile design engineer for 25 years at the Saco-Lowell Shops in Biddeford. After leaving Saco-Lowell, he was employed for 14 years at Southworth Machine in Portland, where he designed hydraulic lift tables. One of Mr. Love's designs was used at the Portland International Ferry terminal.

In 1959, the State Department sent him on a trade mission to Poland. As a textile machine expert, he advised his counterparts in rebuilding their manufacturing base. Several Polish citizens secretly gave Mr. Love personal messages which he delivered to relatives living in the United States.

He was a past master of the Saco Masonic Lodge, member of the Kora Temple Shrine, Lewiston, served as chairman of the Saco Zoning Appeals Board, and for several years served on the Thornton Academy's board of trustees.

He was a member of the United Church of Christ, Biddeford, where he served on the business committee. As part of the church's 150th anniversary celebration, he designed and built a float-size model of the church.

He had a wide variety of interests reflecting his engineering skills, love of aviation and space, and combined his meticulous attention to detail and hand-crafting skills to create gas-driven model airplanes and model ships.

As an amateur astronomer, he designed and built his own 6-inch reflecting telescope, hand-grinding the primary lens. An accomplished photographer, he helped found the Biddeford-Saco Camera Club. Many of his photographs were of astronomical events taken through telescopes. In his later years, he became interested in model shipbuilding and built a replica of Charles Darwin's HMS Beagle.

Surviving are his wife, Rebecca Kennard Love; two daughters, Cynthia Estes of Delmar, N.Y., and Deborah Olstad of San Diego, Calif.; a son, Mark of Portland; and five grandchildren and a great-grandchild.
